This list gives a comprehensive overview of the features you can edit in Photoshop Elements and ImageReady. After all, in the days before the time of Photoshop, people used graphic design programs like Photoshop to create web graphics and print media. That said, Photoshop Elements does have a lot of features most web designers and graphic designers will find useful. Compared to other graphic design software packages, Photoshop Elements is a step up from the popular Paint.NET. Q: How can I assign a value to a named counter in Rust? I'm trying to figure out how to assign a value to a named counter in Rust and running into some confusion. I'd like to have an array of named counters that are incrementing/decrementing as values are assigned to them. So I've made a struct: `struct Counter { name: &'static str, value: K, }` And I'd like to have counters indexed by key, so I made a `HashMap`: `let counters = HashMap::new();` So I try to add a key:value pair like so: `let new_counter = Counter { name: name.to_string(), value: value, }; let new_counter = counters.insert(name.to_string(), (value, 1));` But I'm getting this error: `error: use of moved value: `new_counter` [E0277] let new_counter = counters.insert(name.to_string(), (value, 1));` If I try to add a key:value pair this way: `let new_counter = Counter { name: name.to_string(), value: value, };` It seems like the compiler is interpreting the `Counter` struct in a way that makes it immutable. When I try to then add a new value to it it's not valid anymore. I've tried it with a struct that contains a field of type `Option`, adding a `None` value to the hashmap and then adding a `Some(new_counter)` instead of the created `new_counter` but that doesn't seem to work either. Am I doing something fundamentally wrong here? How can I get the result of the following code: `let mut counters = HashMap::new(); counters.insert(name.to_string(), (None, 1));` to be: `let mut counters = HashMap::new(); counters.insert(name.to_string(), Some(Counter { name: name.to_string(), value: 5, }));` EDIT: I just tried using a `HashMap`

Q: Executable jar contains additional file in package I have an executable jar file that I run as a java application via the command line. The executable jar file is large and has a lot of files in the package: `Root/ dist/ build/ src/ main/ deploy/` I noticed there is an additional file included in this packager that I created for building the executable jar. The content of this file is a zipped copy of the `src/main/resources` folder. Question is: what is this file for? A zipped copy of resources folder seems to be not very logical. Any ideas why it is present in the jar? A: that should be the `actual.jar` file, not the contents of the `src` folder. If you open the `.jar` file in any zip program, it will be an archive. Inside the archive you will find a "root" folder. This root folder is the root folder of the file inside the `.jar` archive. The bundle inside is the main jar, the "root" is what you are seeing. SAN FRANCISCO — Frustrated with their lives, scores of Bay Area residents are leaving to enter the marijuana industry, hoping that soon they will be making a lot of money. Some marijuana retailers are reluctant to talk about what they pay workers because they say it is misleading to compare the industry to traditional businesses, which pay wages in the 15 percent range of the Bay Area's regional median wage of $57,000, as does the cannabis business. Some with more experience in the industry are better equipped to answer basic questions about pay, such as whether workers making minimum wage receive health insurance and if so how they pay for it. Chris Conrad, a spokesperson for the Human Rights Foundation of San Francisco, said he has fielded numerous calls from working-class people who want to know if they can get a job at a marijuana store. The answer, he said, is no. "We are not hiring right now," said Conrad, who joined the human rights foundation in April. He said the cannabis industry is "a little more like a boot camp," with employees being paid as they go. "It's a lot of part-time work." The manager at a medical marijuana dispensary in San Francisco confirmed that is the case, saying
