I am trying to implement a version control workflow for a Rails 3 app. It will have the following namespaces: Sites - List - Create - Change - Delete - Index - List - Show - List - Show - Update - Create - Delete If I put a migration for AddNewSite and User under the Sites/Create directory, my understanding is that it will not be deployed to Heroku or any other location. Is this correct? I tried to follow the RailsCasts instructions but I really don't understand how to make these namespaces work. What is the best practice for implementing git flow for a rails 3 app? A: gitflow is a really nice web application. I think you mean your deployment has a separate namespace from your source code or you are having trouble understanding your version control workflow. I can't tell if you need any help with that by reading your question but in any case, it can work the way you explained. Deployment namespace It's seems to be what you are looking for. By default the namespace of the deployment is release/master so you would just need to make sure it is deployable in this namespace. source code namespace You can use your source code namespaces like you said. But if you are trying to use your source code namespace for the deployments, you would first need to commit your f678ca99e
